Her Birthday Gift

At the age of sixteen, Miss Aileen Dusan was presented with a chicken. It was in a way a birthday present. She wanted something alive—something she could pet and call her very own. The gift was reared in the lap of luxury, the kitchen, the halls and several other places. In time he developed a crow, and in a short time he became a rooster.

At the age of nineteen Miss Aileen became interested in the question of vivisection. She looked upon the practice on birds and beasts as something horrible. She read and talked and protested until she had terrible dreams. She dreamed of seeing bare armed surgeons cutting the throat of her rooster to find out why he didn't sing instead of crow, and for two days afterwards she would shiver at the thought.

One day the four-year-old rooster wandered out on the highway. He was wallowing in the dust and keeping an eye out for grocer boys when an auto came speeding along. He started to fly, but was knocked down and run over. The young man in the machine had begun to laugh when the thrilling scream chased it away. Out of a nearby gate came a young lady with flying hair. Indeed, she had a hairbrush in one hand and a hand-glass in the other, but she dropped both and gathered up the flopping fowl. The rooster had a broken leg.

"I did not see him," faltered the young man, and yet with an amused twinkle in his eyes.

"But you should have seen him!" was retorted. "Do you think the highway is free only to you? You are either very careless or very heartless."

It was young Dr. George Clymer who had just started in practice in the village. He had funds enough to keep an auto, and medicinal cheek enough to go skurrying around in it as if he had received a call from a man with a broken neck. This trip was one of his skurries. While driving along, he was thinking how, and when his first patient would come. He saw how seriously the girl took the affair, and he introduced himself, and added that if any bones had been broken he would be happy to mend them free of cost.

"It is his right leg," she replied. "He may also have received internal injuries."

"I trust not. I had thought of taking him to the office, where I have all the necessary appliances for setting broken limbs, but—"

"You can bring your appliances and perform the operation here," commanded the owner of the rooster as she did her best to soothe the bird. "I will take him into the house."

Doctor Clymer felt both amused and insulted. The young lady was good looking. The family was wealthy. He was single and ready to fall in love. On the other hand, he was his first patient to be a broken-legged rooster. Would that rooster give him the village? That was veterinary work. If work for anyone. No, he would not go back and become a surgeon to a rooster. He entered his office and sat down to a medical book. Tingling at the telephone. Half an hour passed.

"Is this Doctor Clymer?"

"Yes."

"This is Miss Dusan. I thought you were coming right back. I am the owner of the rooster you ran over."

"You, but I have a call from the county," said a man behind four stories.

"I can't help it if he has fallen 14. My register is suffering tortures through your carelessness. I demand that you come at once—at once, sir!"

"The doctor went. At arrived at the Dusan mansion to find the patient lying on his back on a sofa cushion in the library. His wall leg was elevated, his other lying prone. His eyes were closed, and Miss Aileen was pale-faced and fearful.

It was a surgical operation—soon over. The old rooster was game and made little trouble. A plaster of Paris cast was applied, and the patient was taken to the patient's plot and given a lot of instructions to be given to the affairs of the house could go on just the same, and Mr. Dusan need not neglect his business in the city, but there should be no undue excitement. Complacency, serenity and good nursing would bring the rooster to both feet again in due time. Doctor Clymer was introduced to the father and mother before he left. The mother was somewhat anxious about the case; the father walked at the doctor over the daughter's shoulder.

"What the lady's daughter said in the city, and Mr. Dusan said to him, 'Doctor, what is a four-year-old rooster worth in cash?'"

"About 60 cents."

"And your bill must be over a hundred dollars?"

"I thought—thought you might make it a family affair."

"Oh, work you young fellows must have your change. Go and ask Alfred to get a change of 100 cents."

And when the question was propounded to her, ten minutes later, she answered:

"Why, I've got to say yes, haven't I? Suppose my rooster gets run over again and has another broken leg to set!"

TEDDY'S TRAMP

Teddy disconsolately munched a soda cracker, wondering the while how she had ever come to insist that a camp stove was a useless luxury. It was her first season in camp, and her brothers had readily enough given in to her demand for an absolutely correct atmosphere. They had camped in tents on the little lake instead of in the comfortable wooden shack on Lower lake, and they had cooked in primitive fashion over an open fire.

The boys had done—the cooking shoe they had gone into camp three weeks before, but it had all seemed so easy that when they wanted to go down the lake to the village she had insisted that it would be no trouble at all to get her meals.

They had paddled away just as the sun began to tinge the clouds in the east and would not be back before night. Twice Teddy had spilled the bacon into the fire, and as a crowning accident she had set the coffee pot wrong, and that, too, was sliding into the flames, putting out what little fire there was left.

A crashing in the underbrush roused her and she sprang to her feet, nervously handling the revolver the boys had left with her for protection. She raised the glistering weapon as a man burst through the tangle of brush and with a voice that she tried to make stern commanded him to hold up his hands.

They went above his head in an instant and stayed there while he paroled. Teddy knew that the next thing was to bind her victim, but how to do that and retain the revolver was something that was not told in books.

He smiled at her look of helplessness and came a few steps forward.

"I am not a tramp or a robber," he said, with a flash of white teeth beneath his mustache. "I saw a fire a while back and thought that perhaps I might beg some breakfast. I wandered further from our camp than I intended. I am on the other side of the ridge on Blue lake."

"There isn't any breakfast," she said, forcibly. "I spilled the bacon into the fire and then the coffee pot fell in. I was eating these." She waved her revolver toward the box of crackers, and the tramp smiled.

"If you will take my parole," he suggested, "I'll earn my breakfast. I believe that is the proper thing for a tramp to do."

Teddy lowered her gun. He probably was a tramp, but he had nice eyes and a pleasant smile, and she felt that she could trust him.

"If you will set the table," he called. "I'll have things ready in a jiffy."

For a moment Teddy paused. She did not quite like the idea of eating at the same table with a tramp, and she felt that he must be a tramp. None of the campers she knew wore such outrageous garments. But the smell of coffee and the frying fish decided her, so she set two plates.

Skilfully he dished up the fish and took the coffee from the fire. He was even more expert than the boys. Probably that was because he had to camp out the year around.

The breakfast put her in an excellent humor and when the tramp suggested that if she would lend him a gun he would try and get something for dinner, she leaned back in her chair without a thought until he had left the camp. Then the realization of what Bob would say should be come home and find the rifle gone, led her to follow the trail the tramp had taken.

She soon overtook him and he looked up with a smile at her approach.

"Come to share the fun?" he asked pleasantly. Her blush told its own story and he threw his head back and laughed. "I was going to bring the gun back," he declared. "Do you really think I am a tramp?"

"No," her voice lacked conviction. "But, you see, you are not like the boys."

"Possibly they would be like me," he suggested. "If they were in camp without ladies. Khaki and leggings are all very pretty, but there is more comfort in an old shirt that won't be lost than in a new one that will be lost."

Teddy was plausible enough, but Teddy reflected that plausibility was the stock in trade of tramps and she was not convinced.

After dinner he entertained her with stories of the woods and neither realized how late it had grown until a boy shot around the point and the boys waved a welcome.

They swarmed up the beach a few moments later, and Teddy stayed as they warmly greeted the tramp.

"I didn't know that you knew Mr. Charities," said Bob in surprise.

"He came for breakfast," explained Teddy.

"And having had the breakfast, I stayed to get the dinner," Charities added with a laugh. "You see I was out early this morning and not too far away from camp to make it for breakfast. Then I saw this fire and came over."

"Hope you'll come over often," said Bob heartily. He liked the tramp's relaxed magnetism.

"Thank you," said Charities, seeing a second invitation in Teddy's brown eyes. "I think I shall be over very often. I think Trevor does not mind such trampish fellows hanging about the camp."

"I rather like tramps," said Teddy demurely. "Especially before breakfast."

So Charities came again.

HIS WASTED EFFORTS

If Pearl Patterson had told him to shave his hair in tufts and to walk down Main street on his hands and his heels in the air Tom Fianz would have obeyed her.

At least that's what everybody in town said. They also said it was perfectly ridiculous what a slave a man could make of himself just because he had fallen in love with a girl.

That fall Pearl began raving over the football players on the state university team, whose pictures were in all the weekly papers, and what made it more serious was the fact that Ben Trillit, one of the town boys and a rival of Tom's, was on the team. Tom shivered to think of the holiday vacation when Ben would be home and Pearl could worship him in person.

Tom realized to the full the vagaries of the feminine heart. He knew that mere worth did not count against brass buttons or brawn and Ben Trillit certainly had plenty of the latter. He looked like a young ox, Tom bitterly reflected, gazing at the football team as pictured in the window of Peterson's drug store.

Every time he went to call on Pearl nowadays she required the football scores to him and inquired if he didn't think the run that Ben Trillit made in the last game was perfectly wonderful. She said she just loved athletic men.

That settled it. Tom Fianz was built on fat and bulky lines, but if Pearl liked 'em athletic, why, athletic he would be. There was something heroic about Tom Fianz's whole souled sacrifice of himself. What he really liked was a big, platiful buckwheat cakes for breakfast and an easy chair and riding instead of walking, but he held grimly to his diet, religiously swung his Indian clubs, painstakingly worked his pater exerciser and walked five miles a day.

"I'm training down," he told Pearl Patterson with pride. "I really have got a lot of muscle!"

"Have you?" she asked, absently. "I shouldn't have thought it. Did you ever play football when you were at college?"

What chance, Tom Fianz reflected desperately on the way home, had a fellow tied down by business against a great lazy loafer at school, who did nothing but chase a football over the ground? Then he redoubled his exercise.

It was such a serious matter with him that his friends began to take an interest. They all knew that Tom was immolating himself because Pearl Patterson liked athletic men. They took a personal interest in his cutting out Ben Trillit, and when that young gentleman came home at the day—time and took a beating to the day, they were indignant. They considered that she was playing unfairly.

But Tom kept on with his exercise and his diet. He began to grow thin, naturally, but that did not satisfy him, for he yearned for the bulk and brawn of Trillit. However, he could not have the bulk without achieving it by fast, and this worried him.

He read all the sporting pages of the city newspapers in order to follow his conversation by scores and gossip and thus prove to Pearl that he took an abiding interest in athletics. Instead of being impressed by this she took it as a matter of course.

"She looks like a sports and athlete," she sighed. "Did you happen to notice what the last football score was?"

"I can lift ten pounds more than any other man in town," Tom told her one day late in the winter.

"Can you?" Pearl asked, politely. "What's the use?"

"Tom Fianz's jaw dropped. "I-I thought you liked athletic men," he stammered out. "You're so crazy over the football news and Ben Trillit and things like that, I—I've been trying to qualify. I knew you wouldn't like me just for myself and I've been working hard at athletics this winter. I can't play football, but I can do lots of other things!"

Pearl Patterson looked at him with startled eyes. "Do you mean to say," she began, indignantly, "that you've deliberately gone about getting thin and scrawny and like a pickled chicken, as you have been lately, because you thought I'd like you better?"

My goodness, Tom Fianz, I like you heaps better when you're fat and comfortable and I don't care if you're thin or not. Why, you are you!"

"Pearl!" breathed Tom Fianz in a voice broken with emotion. "Why the dickens didn't you tell me that early last fall? I think of all the buckwheat cakes I've missed!"

Another Bunko.

Did the "Man-Eating-Turk" really come from Turkey?" asked the stranger at the wrestling bout.

"No, pal," whispered the diamond backed promoter. "He came from West Cornwall."

When he in the world did he get the name of Hain?"

"Why, his first name was Uriah, but he turned it around backward to give it an oriental flavor."

All He Wanted.

Top-Well, I'm only looking for one.

Mr. Larr's Memory System.

In 1871 Edward Larr was staying with the governor of Bombay at Mahabateswar, the hill station of the Bombay presidency. I was there and took a walk with him one day. I told him they were called "jambul" trees in India. He immediately produced his sketch book and in the inimitable style drew a bulb looking into a jam pot. He said it would help him to remember the name. Spectator.

Wise and Unwise Charity.

How often it is difficult to be wisely charitable—to do good without multiplying the sources of evil. To give alms in nothing unless you give thought also. It is written, "Blessed is he that feedeth the poor, but blessed is he that considereth the poor." A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money.—Ruskin.

Only One Worthy of Honor.

It is not a world for men to take their ease in; but a world for work. It is not a world for the selfish greed of gain; for the selfish selfishness of ambition; nor the selfish selfishness of power; but a world for the generous self-abandonment for sacrifice and heroic duty. Only he shall be honored of men who is found to have accomplished something for human happiness and human good.—Hitchock.

Outright Givers No Discomfort.

The presence by which the outcast is made to give up his plumes for the adorning of women is said to cause the long legged bird no more discomfort than a man experiences in having his hair cut. The feathers are clipped off about an inch from the body, and in about a month the stump of the quill comes out quite easily.

Youthful Teacher's Bravery.

The brave action of a girl teacher was publicly noticed at a recent meeting of Scarborough (Eng.) town council. Miss Smith was in a room with a class of 40 children, none over five years of age. One boy had in his pocket some benzoin beads. Suddenly the children burst into flames. Miss Smith at once called the children to order to prevent panic and then sitting held of the screaming child wrapped him in her dress and put out the flames with her hands. But for her presence of mind the child would undoubtedly have lost his life. The mother and child, his life, then she ran with the child to the mother and collapsed. Her hands and arms were badly blistered and her dress burnt, but the child was saved.

The JUBILEE of CARDINAL GIBBONS

CARDINAL GIBBONS

REPARATIONS are actively in progress for a celebration that will rank as one of the most interesting events in the history of the Catholic church in America. The forthcoming event is a jubilee observance in honor of Cardinal Gibbons, the head of the church in America. What is more, it is to be a double jubilee—something that is most unusual if not indeed unique. The date of this significant anniversary is June 30, which is the golden jubilee of Cardinal Gibbons' ordination to the priesthood and the silver jubilee of his elevation to the position of Cardinal.

However, the observances of this significant event will by no means be confined to the final day of June. On the contrary there will be commemorative events of one kind or another that will occur at intervals for a period of several weeks. The present plan is to have the events of June 30 take the form of a service in the Cathedral of the Cardinal's home city of Baltimore, to which church dignitaries from all over the country will be invited, to be followed by a reception in the neighboring city of Washington, which will take the form of a tribute by American officials to the venerable head of the church and will be attended by President Taft and all the highest officials of the nation.

However, it is expected that other cities will also desire to pay tribute to Cardinal Gibbons in connection with this dual anniversary and if he continues to enjoy the good health for which he has been famous for so many years it is probable that he will wish to accept invitations for later dates from churches at more distant points so that it will be strange if the eminent wearer of the red hat is not kept busy for several weeks acknowledging the popular expression of good wishes in one form or another. All this, too, in the face of the fact that the Cardinal rather deprecates the plans which have been in the making for some time past to take due cognizance of the double jubilee. When, soon after the first of the year, prominent clergy and laymen began to lay plans for commemorative exercises the cardinal expressed the hope that there would be as little display as possible.

Finally there will be ceremonies connected with the laying of the corner stone and later the dedication of what is to constitute the permanent tribute to Cardinal Gibbons in connection with the jubilee—namely, a Cardinal Gibbons Memorial Hall to be erected on the grounds of the Catholic University of America in the District of Columbia. It is planned to erect a monumental structure that will cost at least $100,000 and will be notable architecturally as well as serving a useful purpose at the great seat of learning which has become the center of Catholic activities on this continent. The funds for the erection of this commemorative building are being raised by a nationwide public subscription and thousands of dollars have already been pledged. The great interest which Cardinal Gibbons has always manifested in the university makes it particularly fitting that the enduring testimonial to his career should take the form of an addition to this seat of learning.

The double jubilee in June, the last event of the kind ever celebrated in this country, will be followed in July, on July 23, to be exact, by another significant anniversary. This second, momentous occasion of the summer will be the Cardinal's attainment of the seventy-seventh milestone in a very active life. It is but little less significant than the other event for no other reason than the remarkable vigor and vitality constantly manifested by the eminent churchman. Indeed, no person meeting him casually and unaware of his identity would suspect that he has attained no advanced age. Furthermore, it was not difficult to find a better example of the benefits of a simple and systematic mode of life.

Many persons not familiar with his early career have the impression that Cardinal Gibbons is a son of Erin. On the contrary, he was born in Baltimore—that is in the diocese of which he is now archbishop in addition to holding the position of primate of the Catholic church in the United States. To be sure he was of Irish parentage and during his boyhood his father took him to Ireland where he received the foundations of a liberal education. He was but a youth when he returned to this country and entered St. Charles college in Maryland from which he graduated with high honors at the age of twenty-three. He then entered St. Mary's seminary in Baltimore and after the usual course in philosophy and theology was ordained a priest on June 30, 1861—the anniversary of which event is commemorated by the double jubilee now in prospect.

The early work of the churchman was in Baltimore, and which city his church services have been so conspicuously identified all through his long career. Later, however, after serving as private secretary to the late Archbishop Spalding he was consecrated bishop of North Carolina and remained in that state for four years. Then followed five years of service with similar responsibilities in the state of Virginia. In May, 1877, he was appointed coadjutor with the right of succession to the archbishop of Baltimore and in less than a year he was formally installed archbishop. He was one of the American prelates to visit Rome in 1885 to outline the work of the third plenary council and his marked ability in this connection was at once noted by Pope Leo XIII, who forthwith appointed him to preside over the plenary council. During the meeting of the council the American archbishop further won the approbation of the pope who, to show his appreciation, nominated him for cardinal, the signal honor, the acquisition of which forms the second object of the commemorative program now planned.

It seems peculiarly appropriate that the permanent memorial to Cardinal Gibbons in connection with his jubilee should take the form of a hall at the Catholic university for if there is one project for which this prince of the church has never been a champion and an earnest worker it is this self-same center of higher education under Catholic auspices. It will be remembered that Cardinal Gibbons laid the cornerstone of the university and officiated at the formal opening of the institution, whereas the activities of his long service as chancellor of the university are fresh in the minds of all who keep in touch with educational progress.

As has been hinted above the personal habits of the cardinal are of the simplest character. He is ever active and a subscriber to the theory that change of occupation is the ideal rest. Cardinal Gibbons has long been known as an early riser, getting up as early as 5:30 in summer and seldom later than 6 o'clock even in winter. He usually says mass at 7 o'clock this being the custom no matter whether he is at the cathedral in Baltimore, or at a modest summer retreat in the country, or at some quiet seaside resort. After mass comes breakfast and then an interval is devoted to reading the newspapers, for the cardinal keeps closely in touch with all current events, not setting a decidedly keen interest in what is transpiring in the baseball field.

The main portion of the morning is apportioned between replying to correspondence, receiving visitors and literary work. For the latter the cardinal can find all too little leisure, but he has already attained high rank as a contributor to the literature of the church, his book "The Faith of Our Fathers" being regarded by eminent scholars

GEN. DIAZ GIVES PLEDGE TO RESIGN

COMMANDER OF REBELS HAD PLANNED AN ASSAULT ON MEXICO CITY WITH AN ARMY OF 20,000 MEN.

PRESIDENT DIAZ YIELDS AS MADERO ORDERS MARCH ON CAPITAL.

New Developments Give Satisfaction in Washington But It Is Realized That Some Serious Complications Are Created.

Gen. Porfirio Diaz issued a manifesto to the people of Mexico declaring his intention to resign the presidency as soon as peace is restored. In this manner the president has virtually acceded to the demands of Francisco I. Madero that he make announcement of such intention.

As when peace is actually restored, General Diaz reserves the right to be the judge. In the words of the manifesto, it will be "when, according to the dictates of my conscience, I am sure that my resignation will not be followed by anarchy."

The president declared that his determination not to relinquish the presidency at this time was not due to vanity or love of power, because, as he pointed out, power at this time had no attraction, accompanied as it is by tremendous responsibilities and worry. He said he was prompted solely by a desire to conserve the best interests of his country.

The president made it clear that he does not propose to abandon the presidency while his country is at war and that he would not do so at any time under compulsion.

At the place in the manifesto is made mention of a new election. According to the constitution, resignation is equivalent to political death, so that as he affects the succession. The vice-president would assume the executive chair and he in turn would be followed by the minister of foreign affairs, and then the president-elect.

Should Vice-President Corral not be back in the country at the time the president leaves office, the new incumbent would be Minister de la Guerra, the chief of the rebels' headquarters.

What course the rebels will take after the vice-president or the minister was in power remains to be seen.

"The document is clear, simple and concise, and shows the utmost directness," said Minister de la Guerra tonight. "It is bound to produce a great impression in this country, in the United States and in Europe. All the world may now know where lies the responsibility for the future of the country."

General Madero announced that he would agree to another armistice, should such action be recommended by the rebels.

Secretary of War, Francisco I. Madero, in a sensational announcement that all insurgent forces would be withdrawn from the boundary line and would begin their march toward Mexico City, where it was proposed to assemble an army of 20,000 and make a grand assault on the capital.

In accordance with this decision the rebel army lying before Juarez tonight began its movement away from the city and as a signal of its departure the rebels were given in the direction of the city.

When Gen. Madero heard of the decision to leave Juarez, he immediately gave orders to have troops stop march and to begin their march toward Mexico City, where it was proposed to assemble an army of 20,000 and make a grand assault on the capital.

It is naturally very easy to hear that President Diaz has made the announcement," said Gen. Madero tonight. "I am going to send a telegram to him at once, congratulating him on his resignation. It is a great act, and one that requires the highest kind of personal sacrifice and patriotism."

GEN. DIAZ GIVES PLEDGE TO RESIGN

COMMANDER OF REBELS HAD PLANNED AN ASSAULT ON MEXICO CITY WITH AN ARMY OF 20,000 MEN.

PRESIDENT DIAZ YIELDS AS MADERO ORDERS MARCH ON CAPITAL.

New Developments Give Satisfaction in Washington But It Is Realized That Some Serious Complications Are Created.

Gen. Porfirio Diaz issued a manifesto to the people of Mexico declaring his intention to resign the presidency as soon as peace is restored. In this manner the president has virtually acceded to the demands of Francisco I. Madero that he make announcement of such intention.

As when peace is actually restored, General Diaz reserves the right to be the judge. In the words of the manifesto, it will be "when, according to the dictates of my conscience, I am sure that my resignation will not be followed by anarchy."

The president declared that his determination not to relinquish the presidency at this time was not due to vanity or love of power, because, as he pointed out, power at this time had no attraction, accompanied as it is by tremendous responsibilities and worry. He said he was prompted solely by a desire to conserve the best interests of his country.

Gresham college in 1719 was the scene of a famous serio-comic duel between two celebrated doctors, Doctor Mead and Doctor Woodward, both of whom were lecturers at the college. While walking down Bishopsgate street one morning they quarreled over some medical question and adjourned to the square of the college to fight it out with swords. Woodward fell, wounded in several places, whereupon Mead magnanimously said: "Take thy life." "Anything but your physic," blurted back the challenged Woodward as he swooned away. London Chronicle.

Moses No Longer a Myth

Lecturer Says History Proves His Existence—Built Slave People in Fighting Powerful Machine.

Dr. Camden M. Coburn of Allegheny college in a recent lecture at Plymouth church said: "The last 50 years have made a vital change in the standpoint of scholars with reference to the history recorded in the Bible. A half century ago Moses was often spoken of as a myth, and Bible history was only believed when it could be corroborated by other authors. Today, while a few of the older scholars still stick to the old standpoint, archaeology has convinced the scholarly world in general that the Bible as a whole contains the most accurate history to be found in any ancient document. Even Herodotus, the greatest Greek historian, and thoroughly trained scholar, cannot compare in accuracy with these Bible authors. While none of the early Bible characters are mentioned in the monuments, yet the general vindication of the accounts is remarkable.

"Moses is no longer a myth. He stands out in the ancient past as the only rational explanation of the strange career of a whole people, which, liberated itself from the grasp of the strongest military power on the earth, and conquered for its home a territory occupied by warlike tribes, which, as we know, had been able to sustain themselves successfully against both Babylon and Assyria, powerful in their conquest. Here was a man who took a slave people with slavish ideals, and built them into a nation and made of them a most effective and powerful fighting machine."

Her Accomplishment.

"Is she a good cook?"

"No. She can't cook at all, but she can order the sweetest kind of menu from cafe menu cards."

REASONABLE LOGIC

Say, mamma, where do the cows get their milk? asked little Jessie very seriously, looking up from the foaming pan of milk she had been intently regarding.

"Well, dearie, where do you get your tears?" was the mother's questioning answer. After Jessie had spent several moments of very thoughtful silence, she again broke out:

"Oh, mamma, do the cows have to be spanked?"

HomeCircleDepartment

A column dedicated to Tired Mothers as they find the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

Crude thoughts as they fall from the Editorial Pen—Pleasant Evening Reveries.

The crowning grace of home is cheerfulness.

Let method be your servant and not your master.

Look on the funny side of your annoyances.

The spirit of order must reign in a home before the children can acquire it.

The best way to get along in this world is to take things easy. If you are disappointed, laugh it off and resolve to enjoy yourself in spite of an occasional streak of hard luck. Hard luck soon turns of pursuing a jolly disposition.

STREET IMPRESSION.

The street impresses us with the fact that life is full of pretensions and sham. What subterfuge, what double dealing, what two-facedness! Do all people who wish you good morning really hope you a happy day? Do all the people who shake hands love each other. Are all those anxious about your health who inquire concerning it? Do all who tell you who ask you to call? Does all the world know half as much as it pretends to know? Is there not many a wretched stock of goods with a brilliant show window? Passing up and down these streets to your business and your work, are you not impressed with the fact that much of society is hollow and that there are subterfuges and pretensions? Oh, how many there are who swagger and strut, and how few people who are natural and walk. While fops simper, and fools chuckle, and simpletons giggle, how few people are natural and laugh. The comedian and the libertine go down the street in beautiful apparel, while with the heart there are volences of passion consuming their life away.

BEST WAY.

The speediest and easiest way to benefit mankind would be for every person to reform their own life, regardless of what others are doing. Such a policy would bring about a change for the better in both public and private affairs, and so affect the relationship of mankind that every one would strictly mind his own business. Meddlesome persons who are continually prying into other people's affairs and carrying tales between friends and acquaintances create a great deal of mischief. The best contented when they are contented. It seems more natural for them to speak ill of a person than to utter words of praise, and their habit of gossiping becomes so fixed that they can talk scandal almost unconsciously. It is just as easy to say good words for friends and acquaintances, even if not wholly deserved, and the effect on the community is beneficial in a general way. Scandal gathers strength as it travels by word of mouth and can never be recalled when once in circulation. Try speaking well of everyone and see what a change it will make in your own happiness as well as in the welfare of others.

APPEARANCE AT HOME.

Don't say that it doesn't matter how you look around the house, for it does matter a good deal. It matters in its representative character. It matters in the creditable or questionable representative; it matters in its example to the children and to the help, it matters to the husband and father, who usually, if he is half a man, feels a sense of pride in the appearance of his family.

It is an encouragement to him to find confusion and carelessness in dress and waste and destruction running about about the dwelling. It is one of the important duties of every woman to keep herself and her house in a condition as presentable as possible, considering her circumstances.

TEACH THE BOYS.

A well known man, the monument of whose exceptional ability as a financier in the great dry goods establishment of which he is the head, confided that a discussion of the subject from his standpoint would serve no good end, since every merchant was an individual, and for every individual there would have to be a different description adapted to personal temperament, mental capacity. What would be good for one might be poison to another.

He suggested that the way to make good business men, who would know how to acquire a surplus to dispose of, whether or not to invest in stocks, how much money to keep on hand and how to guard against stringency in the money market, was to give more attention to the morals of the boys who were starting in business. He wished it could be shown to them how they were wasting their opportunities, how they were squandering their manly spirit, how they were wrecking their chances for future prosperity when they indulge in games of chance, pool playing, gambling, and other vicious practices that rob them of their night's rest and fill their minds in the day time to the exclusion of the business with which they are intrusted. Successful business men, he insisted, could, in the majority of instances, take care of their finances fairly well, day time to the exclusion of the business men that needs to be cultivated with greater care.

Trade Relations With Our Canadian Cousins.

Certain interests in this country have aroused the farmers in many localities, particularly the border states, against the proposed Canadian pact, the object of which is to lower the tariff charges on many commodities exchanged between the two countries. It should be borne in mind that a tariff between this country and Canada can in no way bear comparison with that with foreign countries where all the conditions are different and where cheap labor obtains.

There is relatively no difference between this country and Canada as affecting prices of commodities, cost of living, wages, etc. Bay City men who are lumbering extensively in Canada state the cost of labor and supplies in Canada is as great if not greater than on this side. It is so in other things.

Both Canada and the United States have maintained tariff laws, yet in the face of these tariffs a large trade has grown up between us and Canada.

In five years ending June 30, in goods of all kinds, we sold to Canada, $886,417.37; Canada sold us, $393,913.62. Difference in our favor, $492,503.75.

Government statistics show that for five years ending June 30:

Horses: We sold in Canada, $14,182,075; Canada sold to us, $7,549,291. Difference in our favor, $6,632,784.

Cattle: We sold in Canada, $1,573,179; Canada sold to us, $1,193,796. Difference in our favor, $379,383.

Meat and dairy: We sold in Canada, $17,011,017; Canada sold to us, $9,041,191. Difference in our favor, $8,069,826.

Breadstuffs: We sold to Canada, $31,596,356; Canada sold to us, $6,679,884. Difference in our favor, $24,916,472.

Of these items we sold to Canada $53,030,755 more than Canada sold to us. Upon these articles we had to pay the Canadian tariff. But for this Canadian tariff our balance on these items would have been still larger.

These figures show that the farmers on this side have nothing to fear from their Canadian neighbors.

We import annually now one billion feet of manufactured lumber from Canada. This has paid $2 a thousand feet tariff duties until the Payne-Aldrich tariff was reduced to $1.25 a thousand feet.

The farmers have demanded free lumber and it is provided for in the reciprocity agreement. And material reductions are made in the proposed agreement in other lines of manufactured goods.

It doesn't look hardly reasonable that with a population of 93,000,000 the people of this country are likely to be driven off the earth by less than 3,000,000 Canadians. Bay City Tribune.

Loovells Locals.

Wm. B. Merriam's car arrived Monday.

A. C. Ryburn, wife and son arrived Thursday and are stopping on their ranch.

Mr. Jemett was up from the Trux ranch, Tuesday. Mr. J. thinks that the frost Tuesday morning was heavy enough to injure early pumpkins.

Miss Lottie Owen came up from Grayling, Thursday, for a few days' visit.

The Ausable Ranch Co. have set out an orchard of two acres. The good work is going on, we trust the day is not far distant when trains of cars will be loaded with fruit on this Lewiston Branch. We ought to have a creamery at Lovells, enough cows could be kept to furnish a large plant.

A cannery factory will come later on, not to can trout, although we believe it would be better to can the short trout than to kill them and throw them back in the river.

Good Training.

The punctual girl is always a thoughtful girl. She is the girl who does not delay in doing an errand, who never keeps the breakfast waiting while she repairs some forgotten damage to her clothes. No one is ever kept waiting while she sews a rip in her dress or a break in her glove. These things are all done in season. She never puts off doing a thing at the right time, because she has learned that when a thing has been attended to, and put away there is no need to worry about that particular thing.

She is the girl who is at her desk on time if she is one of the great army of working girls. Her employer and friends all know that she will be ready for business or pleasure at the appointed time.

This girl's nerves are in good order, because she never has to hurry or worry to catch up some work that has been neglected at the proper time, and her life runs off smoothly and happily because no undue task or neglected appointment is worrying her, or making her restless. Character is not formed in a minute. This girl has been training herself for years to be punctual. She is ever ready for emergencies, for this habit of punctuality now touches her life in all its relations. And she is making her influence felt in her own family, at least, for they must come to see the wonderful advantage of being always ready, always on time. The punctual girl, while she is earnest and womanly, has not lost any of her girlish charm. Her outlook is encouraging, new chances are constantly opening to her advancement because it is known that she can be relied upon.

"Have you ever tried broiled sausages with mushrooms?" asks a correspondent of the Epicure.

Of these items we sold to Canada $53,030,755 more than Canada sold to us. Upon these articles we had to pay the Canadian tariff. But for this Canadian tariff our balance on these items would have been still larger.

These figures show that the farmers on this side have nothing to fear from their Canadian neighbors.

We import annually now one billion feet of manufactured lumber from Canada. This has paid $2 a thousand feet tariff duties until the Payne-Aldrich tariff was reduced to $1.25 a thousand feet.

The farmers have demanded free lumber and it is provided for in the reciprocity agreement. And material reductions are made in the proposed agreement in other lines of manufactured goods.

It doesn't look hardly reasonable that with a population of 93,000,000 the people of this country are likely to be driven off the earth by less than 3,000,000 Canadians. Bay City Tribune.

Loovells Locals.

Wm. B. Merriam's car arrived Monday.

A. C. Ryburn, wife and son arrived Thursday and are stopping on their ranch.

Mr. Jemett was up from the Trux ranch, Tuesday. Mr. J. thinks that the frost Tuesday morning was heavy enough to injure early pumpkins.

Miss Lottie Owen came up from Grayling, Thursday, for a few days' visit.

The Ausable Ranch Co. have set out an orchard of two acres. The good work is going on, we trust the day is not far distant when trains of cars will be loaded with fruit on this Lewiston Branch. We ought to have a creamery at Lovells, enough cows could be kept to furnish a large plant.

A cannery factory will come later on, not to can trout, although we believe it would be better to can the short trout than to kill them and throw them back in the river.

Good Training.

The punctual girl is always a thoughtful girl. She is the girl who does not delay in doing an errand, who never keeps the breakfast waiting while she repairs some forgotten damage to her clothes. No one is ever kept waiting while she sews a rip in her dress or a break in her glove. These things are all done in season. She never puts off doing a thing at the right time, because she has learned that when a thing has been attended to, and put away there is no need to worry about that particular thing.

She is the girl who is at her desk on time if she is one of the great army of working girls. Her employer and friends all know that she will be ready for business or pleasure at the appointed time.

This girl's nerves are in good order, because she never has to hurry or worry to catch up some work that has been neglected at the proper time, and her life runs off smoothly and happily because no undue task or neglected appointment is worrying her, or making her restless. Character is not formed in a minute. This girl has been training herself for

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. You will find Chamberlain's Liniment wonderfully effective. One application will convince you of its merits. Try it. For sale by all dealers.

Ray W. Billot, of Hillsdale, is in town this week, or rather in the county. He has been the proprietor of a fine flouring and feed mill in that city for 20 years or more. Just such a mill, and just such a man as we need. He owns some good land in Beaver Creek, and as his health is not perfect in the South part of the state, we are trying to convince him that this is the ideal spot to regain perfect health, and by bringing his business with him, he will be at once perfectly at home.

FOR SALE—A full line of buggies and harness, for sale at my livery barn. A few second hand rigs, and anything you want, new from the factory. Call and if you do not find what you want in stock, find it in the catalogue, Geo. Langevin.

For soreness of the muscles whether induced by violent exercise, injury, Chamberlain's Liniment is excellent. This liniment is also highly esteemed for the relief it affords in cases of rheumatism. Sold by all dealers.

Is there anything in all this world that is of more importance to you than good digestion? Food must be eaten to sustain life and must be digested and converted into blood. When the digestion fails the whole body suffers. Chamberlain's Tablets are a rational and reliable cure for indigestion. They increase the flow of bile, purify the blood, strengthen the stomach, and tone up the whole digestive apparatus to a natural and healthy action. For sale by all dealers.

A. C. Olson, of Flint, contractor and builder, has begun the work of rebuilding the store of J. W. Borenson. We are glad to learn that it has decided to make Grayling his home.

A. C. Olson has placed an electric illuminated sign at the corner of the drug store, and Olaf Sorenson and Sons' in front of their restaurant, which are metropolitan for a small city.

What some people call trusting in providence is nothing but laziness. The man who thinks providence will help him without any effort on his own part speedily finds out his mistake.

During the past week several thousand bushels of potatoes have been dug in various parts of the county that were left undug last fall by reason of snow coming early and staying late.—Oscego Co. Times.

A letter from Lee Winslow locates him at 1000, 8th St. East Ellensburg, Wash., where he thinks he likes the country, but wants "the only paper from the only town on the map." The AVANTAGE slides that way.

LOST—A silk umbrella in the post office, with gold-mounted handle and initials J. H. E. carved upon the same. Finder will confer a great favor, and will be liberally rewarded upon leaving it at the Post Office or Printing Office. J. H. Fleming.

Highway Commissioner Peck has the grading west from the M. C. R. R. toward Portage Lake well under way, and will be spreading gravel from this end, this week. He is cutting off a number of corners, to straighten the track and give a better view ahead for autos and carriages.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Forbes said "Good-Bye" to our Village at 11 o'clock, Saturday, for their new home in Indiana. They will visit a few days at Bay City and Flint on the way. Both bear with them the good wishes of our community.

Charles Douglas will start for a new home in Cincinnati, Ohio this week to be followed by the family after the close of the school year. We could select several families in the county whom we would rather spare, but will send with them our best wishes for future prosperity.

Michigan leads all other states in the manufacture of automobiles. In fact, Michigan made a little more than half of all the automobiles of this country in 1909. There were 127,281 machines produced in the United States that year of Michigan produced 64,921.

First Communion and Confirmation will take place at St. Mary's Catholic Church on Tuesday, May 16, at 8 a. m. About 80 children and converts will be confirmed. This is the largest class that has been confirmed here in this church for many years. All are invited to attend this ceremony.

We heard one of our citizens in conversation with a pastor of one of the Village churches Tuesday morning, and one of them claimed he "could hear the leaves cracking on the trees, after the snow had melted."

folded so rapidly, we doubted the assertion, and do not believe it was the preacher's voice.

Editor Peterson, of the Roscommon News, made us a fraternal call Friday evening. He, with the other citizens of that Village are slated by the success of their H. S. in defeating the H. S. team here by one score last week. Our fellows did not want to be idle and crush them on their first visit for the season.

Auditor General Fuller has estimated that the appropriation of primary money this month will be $7 per capita, the highest rate that has been distributed for many years. Unnecessary economy to the detriment of the efficiency of our public schools seems uncalled for this year.

I have bought the entire grocery stock of Elias Brady, with all store accounts due to him, which are to be paid to me. New stock has been put in, and I am prepared to meet all calls. Come and see me at the grocery store on the south side of the river. feb23. WALTER JORGENSEN.

Trout fishing season opened Monday and does not close until Sept. 1. Landlocked salmon, grayling, speckled California Loch Leven, and steel head trout over seven inches will be taken during the season. The open season for bass is from June 15 to Feb. 1, and any over ten inches, limited to ten in a catch, can be taken. Strawberry, white and catfish bass over seven inches are limited to 20.

The dedication of the new hospital will take place on Tuesday, May 16, at 10 a. m. The Sisters of Mercy extend a most cordial invitation to all to attend this ceremony. Every one is invited and all should bring their friends. Anyone wishing to donate to the hospital on this date, may leave their donation with the good Sisters.

R. B. Swanson of Hudson, was in town last week, unquitting concerning the business prospects in this county, in the line of real estate. He had been looking over some lands in Beaver Creek, and seems to believe, as we do, in the future prosperity of this section. Coming from our boyhood home town, we were glad of his visit, and the talk of old friends.

Curds have been received in the city announcing the birth of twin daughters Sunday, April 23, to Mr. and Mrs. Axel Becker of Johannesburg, Mich. Mrs. Becker was formerly Miss Eva Woodburn, a popular Belle of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Becker now have four children, Ruth, aged six, and Alton, aged four, being the other two. Congratulations are extended.

The Citizens' Band gave their first open-air concert from the stand on the Court House square, last Friday evening, and though the atmosphere was slightly chilled, they were welcomed by several hundred of our citizens, and the "band played on" that is, they adjourned to the opera-house for their annual hop, and had a full house, and one of the most pleasant parties ever. As the AVANTAGE has before said: We have the "best band" in the best and "only" town on the map.

To the Public:

The Sisters of Mercy, and the board of trustees extend a most cordial invitation to the public to attend the dedication of the new Grayling Mercy Hospital on next Tuesday, May 16th, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

The laying of the Corner-stone will take place in the afternoon at 3 p. m. on the same day, to which ceremony the public is also invited. The President of the Village and other prominent speakers, as Rt. Rev. Bishop Schrembs and prominent doctors of the state will speak at this ceremony. Tuesday, May 16, therefore, will be the formal opening of Grayling Mercy Hospital.

All are cordially invited to attend these services.

J. HUMPHREY FLEMING, Pastor.

Do Ghosts Haunt Swamps?

No. Never. It's foolish to fear a fancied evil, when there are real and deadly perils to guard against in swamps and marshes, bayous, and lowlands. These are the malarial germs that cause ague, chills and fever, weakness, aches in the bones and muscles and may induce deadly phoid. But Electric Bitters destroys and casts out all these vicious germs from the blood. "Three bottles drove all the malaria from my system," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C. "I have had fine health ever since." Use this safe, sure remedy, only 50c. at A. M. Lewis & Co.

M. E. Church.

11:45 a. m. Sunday School.

3:00 p. m. Junior League.

6:30 p. m. Epworth League.—Subject—"The Evidence of Divine Blessing and Prosperity."

Leader—Mrs. S. S. Phelps.

7:30 p. m. Public service.

The 22nd Anniversary of the Organization of the Epworth League.

7:30 p. m. Thursday, General Prayer Meeting.

A good program and special music. The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Non-Church goers are especially invited.

JAMES LEE, Pastor.

Saved Child From Death.

"After our child had suffered from severe bronchial trouble for a year," wrote G. E. Richardson, of Richardson's Mills, Ala., "we feared it had consumption. It had a bad cough all the time. We tried many remedies without avail, and doctor's medicine seemed as useless. Finally we tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and are pleased to say that one bottle effected a complete cure, and our child is again strong and healthy. No more coughs, colds, hoarseness, lung trouble, asthma, croup and sore lungs, it's the most infallible remedy that's made. Price 25c. per bottle. Sold everywhere. Guaranteed by A. M. Lewis & Co."

Card of Thanks.

To our many personal friends and to all the citizens of Grayling, and especially to the surgeons, Insley and Keyport, and the Sisters of Mercy at the hospital for untiring care and sympathy during the terrible suffering of our loved one. We return sincerest thanks.

MRS. ANNA HANSON.

A City Boy and a Cow.

Young Robert was much interested in looking over the pictures in his first primer. He lives not so far from the stock yards in West Philadelphia. He has been told that the animals are slaughtered. He became highly excited over the picture of a cow. "Mamma, mamma," he cried, "I saw a cow in the street and a man was going to kill her for her milk." Philadelphia Times.

Hide Dismal Secrets. In England there are hundreds of ancient buildings which possess their secret passages, and during excavations in London long-forgotten tunnels are often encountered. Underneath Windsor castle, Ireland, one of the seats of the Duke of Devonshire, are one or two curious secret tunnels leading to spacious caves in which skeletons and uniforms have been found.

WILL RAISE PRICE OF SUGAR BEETS

THE BELIEF OF CANADIAN GROWERS REGARDING THE RECIPROcity PACT.

SOME DOUBT WHETHER PRODUCT WILL BE ADMITTED FREE.

The Question is Very Important to the Beet Sugar Companies of Canada as Well as to Michigan.

Canadian beet sugar companies are unable to learn whether sugar beets will be on the free list if the proposed reciprocity bill between Canada and the United States becomes a law. American Consul Fred Slater, located here, has on request, given his opinion on the Canadian sugar companies, although he states that his opinion is without authority.

Mr. Slater believes that the proposed pact, on the free list, would be a good thing for the companies, but he asks for an opinion from the Canadian government, while Mr. Slater will also seek information, on the question from the American government.

Under the tariff law of 1897, which will continue in force, providing it does not conflict with the reciprocity pact, the tariff on sugar beets is 25 per cent ad valorem. At the time the present tariff law went into effect, the tariff on sugar beets was 10 per cent. The question whether beets were on the free list. At that time the government handed down an opinion to the effect that sugar beets were classified under the list of vegetables and that they should be taxed the regular rate.

Under the contention of the sugar companies at the time that beets, not having been specifically mentioned in the reciprocity pact, should come under the schedule containing molasses, roots, etc.

Under the proposed pact, vegetables are placed on the free list, although sugar beets are not specifically mentioned. It includes all other vegetables in their natural state not here mentioned. At the time of the question over the first tariff beets were not used to a large extent for sugar purposes, but were for feeding purposes. It is thought that this may make a difference at the present time, because nearly all the beets are used in the manufacture of sugar, which consumes much labor, while previously the only change made to the beets was topping and washing.

The question is important to the beet sugar companies of Canada as well as to Michigan. If beets are on the free list, it will mean more competition for the companies. Especially is this true of the Canadian companies where the price paid is not as high as in Michigan. Whether the fact that beets are cheaper in Canada will increase the price because of the competition or whether it will decrease it, the question is a question which cannot be settled until it has been worked out. The Canadian farmer believes that it will increase the price without affecting the price of beets in the states.

ALL LEGISLATURE WORK IS WOUND UP

Governor Osborn Disposes of 346 Bills Passed.

APPROPRIATIONS TRIMMED

One Allowing $500,000 for State Reward for Good Roads is Most Notable Exception—General Primary Measure is Signed.

Lansing.—The final adjournment of the legislature was a very tame affair, attracting just four senators and eight house members. It took just three minutes to wind up affairs in the senate, as the governor's veto messages were ordered printed in the Journal to save the time of reading them. Representatives Straight and Kaimbach were hopeful that they might find some way of ending a formal protest against the action of the senate in refusing to entertain impeachment proceedings against Warden Russell or Marquette's prison, but Senator Marquette pointed out to them that with a quorum no business could be transacted, so they gave it up.

Over on the house side all the governor's veto messages on house measures were read and the proceedings took up nearly half an hour.

President Jones, of the Ypsilanti Normal school, won out in his contention that clerical error was responsible for leaving the item of $125,000 for a new auditorium out of the institution's appropriation bill. After a long search it was discovered that the joint conference committee had agreed to it, but the item was left out when the final draft of the measure was prepared for the printer. To remedy this a new bill was enrolled and presented to the governor. The chief executive complimented President Jones on his energy and told him that he ought to get the appropriation as a personal compliment, if it were possible, after which he proceeded to attach his signature.

The governor completed his task of approving or vetoing the bills by the legislature in order that the journals of both houses may contain a full record of the action on every measure. Of the 346 bills passed by the legislature, the governor vetoed 31 outright and 18 partially, all of the latter being appropriations. As a matter of fact, very few appropriations got through without being trimmed, the most notable exception being the $500,000 allowed for state reward good roads.

In round numbers the governor has cut $780,000 out of the budget as allowed by the legislature, which will reduce it to about $11,500,000, though the exact figures will not be known until the state accountant can compile all the items and the supreme court passes on the right of the chief executive to reduce the amount of specific items.

The last eight or ten bills which were submitted to the governor were measures of state importance and he signed them with thought and some hesitancy in several instances because of provisions which did not please him. He wound up by attaching his signature to the bill making a straight two-cent fare on all the railroads in the state, so that after August 1 the upper peninsula roads will have to reduce their fares unless they decide to attack the law on the ground that the rate is confiscatory.

This same bill allows the Ann Arbor railroad to charge a minimum fare of five cents on its gasoline cars, and the governor would have vetoed it if the clause had not been tacked on to the two-cent fare bill.

Senator Watkins' bill amending the general game laws met with approval. The open-season provisions are: Deer, October 15 to November 30; fox, gray and black squirrels, October 15 to November 30; rabbits, October 15 to March 1; quail, October 15 to November 30; ruffed grouse, October 15 to November 30; spruce hens, October 15 to November 30; ducks, snipe and water plovers, woodcock, shore birds, rails and coots, October 15 to December 31; geese and brant, October 15 to December 31; provided, however, that fox, black and gray squirrels shall not be hunted or killed until 1914; provided further, that Mongolian or English pheasants, black fowls, capercaillies, hazel grouse and wild turkeys shall not be hunted or killed until the year 1915, and then only at the time in the manner and for the purpose authorized by law; provided, however, that in addition to the open season for wild fowl shooting, it shall be lawful to hunt and kill bluebirds, canvasbacks, redhead, wildgeese, pintails, whistlers, spoonbills and butterball and sawbill ducks, between March 2 and April 10; provided further, that it shall be lawful to hunt and kill teal and mallard ducks from September 15 to December 31.

The governor signed the Flowers bill, which allows the Ann Arbor railroad to charge a minimum fare of five cents on its gasoline cars, and the governor would have vetoed it if the clause had not been tacked on to the two-cent fare bill.

POTATO PROFITS IN IDAHO

The modest potato is not sufficiently taken into account as a producer of profit for the man who tills the soil.

We hear about the romance of wheat, the kindly rule of corn, the commercial dignity of oats and alfalfa, of barley and rye, and we count them as sources of great wealth for those who make the earth their ally.

But, granting all the grains and forages the credit that is due, there are wide stretches of land in Idaho producing cash yields from potatoes that make the average grain production of states farther east appear exceedingly small.

And there are so many more acres, of the same kind, that have not yet been given a chance to show what they can do, that the money-making possibilities of Idaho, so far as potatoes alone are concerned, cannot be estimated.

Idaho won national publicity in 1910 as the result of the awarding of prizes of $500 and $250, given by Mr. D. B. Burley of Salt Lake City, Utah, for the best and second best yields of potatoes produced on a single acre of land.

The prize-winning potatoes were grown on the farm of Mr. Snyder, near Burley, Idaho. The prize-winning potatoes were grown on the farm of Mr. Snyder, near Burley, Idaho. The prize-winning potatoes were grown on the farm of Mr. Snyder, near Burley, Idaho.

The Oregon Short Line, together with the affiliated lines mentioned above, traverses the states of Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Wyoming, so it will be readily seen that the winning of prizes for which there were competitors from so wide a territory was an accomplishment of great importance to the victorious state and of lasting credit to the successful growers.

The results of this contest, particularly in so many of the most progressive farmers in the prescribed district, were amazing, and the following account of those results, with figures showing what the returns signify in the matter of profits from the land, should prove interesting to everyone concerned in agricultural affairs.

Through Mr. L. Snyder, the first prize of $500 was won by Twin Falls county, Idaho, with the "Dalmatian Challenge" variety of potatoes. The second prize of $250 went to Canyon county, Idaho, through Mr. W. B. Gilmore, with the "Peachblow" variety.

On his winning acre of Idaho land Mr. Snyder raised 645 bushels of potatoes, weighing 38,685 pounds. The culls weighed 4,150 pounds, leaving 34,535 pounds of the finest marketable potatoes, or about 575 bushels.

At 70 cents per 100 pounds, or 42 cents per bushel, the price Mr. Snyder received, the one prize acre produced in money, therefore, the sum

Their Pleasant Summer

"Where," asked the caller, in conventionally polite tones and with lukewarm interest, "are you going for the summer?"

"The effect on her hostess was electric. She sat bolt upright, dropped the teapot with a bang and echoed: 'Going! We're not going—we're staying!'"

"My goodness!" gasped the caller. "Because me for mentioning it if it's a tender subject?" said her hostess, energetically. "It's worse—it's an impossible subject! We went away last summer, and that's the reason. The Tunnills announced that they were going to Europe and said that if we'd occupy their big place across the lake for the season, and see that the servants didn't fight and that the cows didn't eat up the garden, we'd make them our debtors for life."

"We stored our furniture when the lease expired in May and rushed headlong to our doom. We thought it was a paradise on earth toward which we were flying, and maybe it would have been if the cook and the maid and the man of all work at the place hadn't decided that since their real family was gone, this would be a nice time to run home to the old country for a visit. And they went, two days after we came. They looked us over in a cold and critical way and disapproved of us and departed."

"We got lots of exercise before we found help. Tom used to rise at four and weed the garden and I got up at the same time to feed the chickens, turn on the automatic pump, get breakfast and 'superintend' Tom's milking. He was kicked through the barn door only twice and we considered that the record was pretty good for a greenhorn. He had some minor mishaps, like poking back all the beans when they came up, pushing the seed ahead of them and training the potato vines up on strings instead of the peas, but trouble didn't really start until later."

"One day we were sitting in the flower garden having lunch, and I told Dotty, aged four, to go indoors for something. We watched her disappear into the house and then Tom said, 'Could anything be more peaceful or inspiring than this perfect day?' And I responded in similar blank verse. Just then the neighbor whose cottage was on the lake shore came tearing around the corner of our house."

"She stared at us as though we annoyed her. 'Aren't you folks in bathing?' she inquired. 'Well, somebody is out in front, and I thought—'"

"Tom and I did a foot race to the water unconscious and black in the lake and he fished Dotty out of the face. That child had marched in at the back door of the house and as promptly marched out through the front door and proceeded to take a paddle by herself in the lake, inspired by some unaccountable juvenile impulse."

"Dotty came out of her trance in two hours, but during that time I got ten gray hairs and Tom's nervous system was permanently shattered."

"It was a couple of weeks later that Dotty and Tom remarked that their throats were sore and the doctor pronounced it black diphtheria. He murmured something about defective drains. There was a blurb of trained nurses and horrors for a time and then the smoke of battle cleared away."

"Meanwhile the cows had eaten that part of the garden that had not dried up for lack of attention and the chickens were laying eggs all over the country. The Tunnills never did get them back."

"They'll send us postcards from Europe saying 'We saw this today. Hope you are enjoying life at the dear old home.' This while I was burning fumigating candles. Or 'We came down this river today. How you must be enjoying the garden green things. That came the day the cows ate the last of the green corn we had expected to use ourselves.'"

"A little while later Tom dropped a flatiron on his toe and blood poisoning set in. Then the Tunnills sent a lovely card saying: 'We can just imagine you doing the five-mile walk through Elm lane and the woods. We envy you.' This was while we were changing the bandages on his smashed and painful foot six times a day."

"The worst of all was that the family sent Tom's pretty and charming sister Nell to us so that she'd forget the inopportune man who was trying to get engaged to her. I produced all the young men at the hotel and several village lights to distract her, and so perfectly did I succeed that she stopped with a college boy who was running a launch to pay his summer expenses. As the family was saying up a millionaire for Nell when she should have come to her senses they still feel hard toward me, and say I should have had more sense."

INVASION OF DETROIT

Michigan Endeavorers Will Have Great Convention.

PROMINENT MEN WILL ATTEND

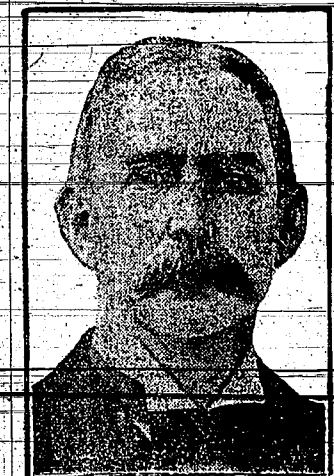

Many Planning to Go to Detroit and Atlantic City Conventions During Summer Vacations—State Convention Promises to Be of Unusual Interest.

IMPORTANT DATES.

State Convention—Detroit, June 22-25.
International Convention—Atlantic City, July 6-12.

About 1,500 young people throughout Michigan are making preparations to attend the Twenty-second Annual Michigan Christian Endeavor Convention, which will be held in Detroit, June 22-25. This convention will be one of the most helpful and enjoyable gatherings ever held by Michigan Endeavorers. While in past years these conventions have been almost exclusively for Endeavor societies, this year all limitations have been cast aside, and practically every Christian Young People's organization of note will participate. This insures an attendance larger than at any state convention yet attempted.

The motto of the convention is "Forward," and neither time nor money is being spared to make this a real forward step in young people's work. Not only will this be the largest gathering of young people's organizations held in the state, but the program will be second to none in the country. At every session will be some of the country's best and most prominent speakers. Dr. Francis E. Clark, more commonly known among members of Christian Endeavor societies as Father Endeavorer Clark, the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, will be one of the principal speakers. Father

REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

Clark has not visited Michigan Endeavorers in a number of years, but his interest in the local work is as keen as ever. This will be one of the last times that he will attend a state convention here, as he is planning to discontinue attending conventions all over the country, and devote his time to less strenuous work.

Father Clark will go from Detroit to the great International Convention at Atlantic City, N. J., July 6-12. A number of young people who will attend the Detroit convention are planning to extend their vacation so as to accompany Dr. Clark to the other convention. A splendid trip is assured all those who will make their way from Detroit to Atlantic City. Special rates have been secured from all points in Michigan to Detroit, and a special rate of $23.50 has been arranged for the trip from Detroit to Atlantic City and return, allowing for stopovers at Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, the national capital, and New York, with a possible side trip to the historic battlefield of Gettysburg.

Every active young people's society in the state is planning to send a delegation to the Detroit convention, and the Detroit Endeavorers are planning a number of unique features to give their visitors the best possible time while they are in the city. The first of these, an automobile ride around the city, touching all the points of real interest to tourists, is characteristic of the city. Another important feature is a trip on one of the magnificent new steamers along the beautiful Detroit river.

What promises to be the most important among the special features is the fact that all registered and qualified delegates will receive free entertainment, (lodging and breakfast) during the convention.

Every member of a Christian Endeavor Society, Epworth League, Baptist Young People's Union, Episcopal Guild or Auxiliary, or any other young people's organization in the state who expects to attend the convention may obtain free entertainment by applying to Miss Mary R. Phinney, 107 Collingwood avenue, Detroit, for delegate's credentials. These credentials, properly signed by the president and secretary of the delegate's society, must be presented to the committee upon arrival in Detroit.

CHURCHES JOIN IN CONVENTION

Problems of Church Unity May Be Solved by Young People.

WILL DISREGARD DIFFERENCES

Greatest Young People's Convention Ever Held in Michigan Will Open Thursday, June 22—Hundreds of Young People From Every Part of State Planning to Attend.

FEATURES OF UNITY.

The Episcopal cathedral will be one of the convention churches. Dean Marquis of the cathedral will speak twice. Prominent Methodists and Baptists are on the program. The hearty co-operation among all denominations in Detroit fosters spirit of unity.

Never in the history of Young People's conventions in Michigan has there been one quite so unique as the one to be held in Detroit, June 22-25. Besides the many other striking features the one that commands our attention immediately in this day of "Church Unity" discussion is the extreme interdenominational basis of the convention. The Detroit convention committee is made up of men and women representing most prominent denominations in young people's work. One of the convention churches is the Episcopal cathedral. The speakers chosen are among the most prominent men of the same communions. All of the plans are made with the definite purpose that young people will attend the convention irrespective of denomination, but with the one determination to do the most good and to get the most good possible.

And why should it not be so? Why should we older people try to reproduce in our children sectarian differences which, though they were vital to us and our forefathers, have become meaningless today? Why not encourage our young people to be Christians first and then to be Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists or what not afterwards? The great task that challenges the Christian church today is to make a spirit of unity hitherto unknown. We who are so far removed from the frontier of Christian conflict are doing well to follow in the footsteps those who out there are so bravely upholding the standard of the Christ. But we are following with very uncertain tread, not realizing that one of the chief secrets of their power is the fact of their unity in the face of a common foe. If the Christian church could only learn the secret of the power of the forces of evil and then act upon that knowledge, there would be no more wicked world.

Forces, and forgetting of differences and best of all—a triumphant victory for the right.

This idea of unity is what, if it comes at all, through its incarnation as the life of the young generation. As long as the churches insist on perpetuating their petty differences through their Westminster language, Luther leagues, Epworth leagues or Baptist Young People's Unions, just so long will the cause of real Christianity be retarded in the world. The day is coming, and it is not far distant, when there will be one great young people's society with one name, a branch of which will be in every church in the world. In this way the great ideal of Jesus Christ for His church, "that they may be one," will be approximated not only by the missionaries in the thick of the battle, but also by the younger generation the world over.

It is with such an idea in view that the Detroit convention committee is making plans for the coming convention. Every added one who attends will help on toward the glorious realization. Every member of a Christian Young People's society is welcome at the convention and is entitled to free entertainment if he presents delegate's credentials which have been properly signed. These credentials may be procured from Miss Mary R. Phinney, 107 Collingwood Ave., Detroit.

ENDAVOR

What hast thou for thy spat?

O sower of the plain!

Where are the many gathered sheaves

Thy hope should bring again?

The only record of my work

Lies in the buried grain!

O conqueror of a thousand fields,

In dusted armor-dight,

What growths of purple amaranth

Shall prove thy power of might?

Only the blossoms of thy life

Flung widely in the light!

What is the harvest of Thy saints,

O God, who dost abide?

Where grow the garlands of Thy chiefs

In blood and sorrow dyed?

What have Thy servants for their pains?

"This only—do have tried!"

Wonderful Human Ear.
"Wonderful as are the functions of the eye, the ear appears to be a yet more marvelous instrument. People with good hearing do not appreciate the inexplicable delicacy of the little instrument that nature has implanted on each side of their heads. But anatomists appreciate without being able to understand it. There is hardly any trouble with the eye that they cannot adjust, but so with the ear. When its faulty mechanism is joggled and out of tune it is often impossible to restore its functions. It is the greatest mystery of the human organism."

Long-Lived Parsons.
The clerical profession seems especially to longevity. Dr. Howe of Cambridge, and Dr. March of Woburn have just celebrated their hundredth and nineteenth birthdays, respectively; and recently the Rev. Dr. Pillsbury of Pittsfield died in his ninety-first year. —Boston Transcript.

Fair to Both Sides.
Pence de Conti was not fastidious on the subject of the mass. He wished to have for his almoner, the Abbe Prevost, the author of "Maison Lesseigneuse," said his abbe to him, "I have never said mass." "Never mind," said the prince, "never hear it."

Volume of Water in Lakes.
It would take at least eight or ten rivers like the Mississippi to contain as much water as Lake Erie, and Erie is the least of the five great lakes in that respect. Ontario covers a smaller area, but more than makes up for it by greater depth.

Genius and Brain Capacity.
Most men of genius have a high brain capacity. Lebon, on examining the skulls of 36 French men of genius, found that they yielded an average capacity of 1,734 cubic centimeters, a little more than 200 is excess of the average.

Women's Weakness.
From a business point of view, declares the Lady's Realm, there is nothing so fatal for a woman to possess as "accomplishments." The market is flooded with ladies of limited incomes, limited brains and a tremendous quantity of "taste."

Sultan's Unique Fire Screen.
The sultan of Turkey is said to possess a fire-screen 300 years old, made from the tanned skin of 12 faithful slaves who rescued a former sultan from a blazing palace at the cost of their own lives.

A Daily Thought.
No man needs sympathy because he has to work, because he has a burden to carry. Far and away the best prize that life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing. —Theodore Roosevelt.

Gramp of the Married Man.
A female young man of East London county court declared that who could always tell if a man was married or not, by the way he whisked a baby's mail-cart.

Can Have Too Much Patience.
"Have patience," said Uncle Eben, "but don't have so much of it that you're willing to sit around waiting for opportunities while somebody else does all the work."

An Adherent.
By mistake a farmer had got around a job reserved for a party of college graduates who were returning to their alma mater for some special event. There was a large quantity of refreshments on the table and the farmer was allowed to join the others. "Fit my some one asked him: 'Are you an alumnus?' "No," said the farmer earnestly, "but I better be it." —Lippincott's.

Sightseeing.
On a visit to his grandmother, Harry examined her handsome furniture with interest and then asked: "Grandma, where is the picture table that papa says you always keep?" —Success Magazine.

Subject for Debate.
Subject of discussion at Saturday night's meeting of the Lancaster Literary society, "If a Woman Has 'Em, Should She Wear 'Em or Shave?" —Acheson Globe.

SOME MAN SOME DAY

May Make A Medicine To Cure Bright's Disease Rheumatism, Stomach And Bladder Trouble The Equal of

SAN-JAK

But Not Yet

It Is The Only Medicine Which Enables You To Keep A Perfect Balance Between The Eliminations And Renewals of The Body.

Decay Of The Body In Old Age Is Unnatural.

Permanent wastes of the system can be avoided by taking San Jak making each day a birthday for the person who has a bottle of this great medicine on hand. Read and learn how to cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Lame Back and Stomach Diseases.

When the products of exhaustion reach the brain and deaden the nerve centers, as is the case with all old people, limiting their ability to think and act unless they have the power to oxidize the acids that accumulate during sleep and eliminate them, they had better get a bottle of Dr. Burnham's San Jak. I am 80 years old and have kept a bottle of this medicine in my house during the past year and take a dose quite often so I know it helps give strength and activity.

E. O. Kelley, Lansing, Mich.
411 Washtenaw St.

Mrs. M. I. Brown, mistress of the Butler House, Lansing, Mich., says: "One year ago I was in very poor health, sick and weak in that much dreaded disease, kidney trouble, called Bright's Disease by physicians. I had taken about one dozen bottles of San Jak and have no symptoms of it. I am now as strong as a horse. I give this letter for the benefit of others."

E. S. Hough, Ex-Judge of Probate, Lapeer, Mich., says: "I bought a bottle of San Jak at 6 P. A. Snowman, the druggist and my peer. I felt I was 100 years old and was great distress of the stomach and a drag, sleepless feeling, which the medicine has corrected. I cheerfully permit the use of this letter for the benefit of others."

Lapeer, Mich., March 10, 1908.
Mrs. T. H. Curtis, R. F. D. No. 2, Lapeer, Mich., says: "I wish to tell you how much good your San Jak has done me. I have had the rheumatism and liver trouble for years. Since I started taking your San Jak, I feel like a new man and my limbs were swollen as I could wear my shoes. I have taken one and one-half bottles of your remedy. The blot has all gone down. The pain has gradually left and the stiff joints are getting more limber. I think three or four bottles of your San Jak will cure me completely. May I make in words is a feeble way of telling how grateful I feel for the benefits bestowed upon me by your medicine."

We will give $100 to any church or charitable institution if these testimonies are not genuine.

Have you Kidney, Liver, Stomach or Bladder Trouble?

Are you a Rheumatic, with Backache, Varicose and Swollen Limbs?

Take Dr. Burnham's

SAN-JAK

It restores the aged to health and youth. No remedy equal to San-Jak as a blood tonic. The tired feeling leaves you like magic.

J. F. Roe, 41 E. Main St., Battle Creek, says: I wish to state that your San-Jak cured me of Bright's disease after the local doctors said I could not live.

W. E. Curtis, Curtis Optical Co., Pontiac, Mich., says: San-Jak cured him of catarrh of the head and throat, which was so chronic as to cause great deafness. His general health was so improved for several years having gained ten pounds in two weeks. He says it is a duty he owes his fellow men to permit the use of this letter, knowing that the same San-Jak has secured others of my friends whom I suggested they try. He says it is good to be rid of the constant hacking coughing, scraping and startles which were a constant reminder of his trouble. He is now as healthy as a young man, with no more hacking coughing and night sweats.

San-Jak is sold by the Central Drug Store, Grayling, Mich.
